A Story of Growth

Growth

At no other time in our lives than during our youth are we more like the two-headed god, Janus. One face representing our childhood looks into the past while the other face representing adulthood looks to the future.

Childhood was a delightful time for most of us because we were innocent of the harshness of life. Our parents protected us from it with comfort, warmth, and happiness. However, as we grew older and came into closer contact with the rest of the world, we became acquainted with the other half of Janus — adulthood. Our parents had us assume responsibility at home, and more was expected of us at school. We were taught not only to value the advice of our elders, but also to evaluate and to make our own decisions. For the first time we began to doubt and to fear because our problems seemed to multiply and to become more complex. We made ourselves squirm by brooding over thousands of problems whose answers seemed unobtainable. Sometimes our child-like faith was shattered by reality; sometimes our ambitions and ideals were shaken by failure. In some vague attempt to find ourselves, we struggled against ourselves, our parents, and the rest of the adult world. But gradually, values began to solidify and a foundation for a firm faith in humanity was laid.

As each day passes, the two faces of Janus — the experiences gathered in childhood and the promises of the future — gradually fade into one. When the two sides are firmly cemented into one, we will have reached another summit in the process of growth. By then we will have profited enough from bitter experience, sweet joy and love to face the future with confidence.

Progress Through Leadership

We the Class of '60 are proud to have been a part of a four-year period of education marked by an unparalleled increase in enrollment. Since our entrance in East Hartford High School, the number of students increased by 401, from 1695 in our freshman year to 2086 in our senior year. We are proud of our modern building and its new addition which we, as seniors, have been the first to enjoy. But boastful as we might be of our size and physical accommodations, we shall never lose sight of the most important growth of our school — a growth in educational quality and opportunity inspired by the vigorous leadership of our principal, Edward M. Dillon.

Mr. Dillon, principal of East Hartford High School since 1954, has been close to East Hartford's growth and development. He is aware of both administrative and teaching functions and responsibilities necessary to the complete education of the student. Before becoming principal, Mr. Dillon was science teacher, coach, department chairman, acting principal, and then with our new building, he became our principal.

Mr. Dillon has ever been cognizant of nation-wide trends in educational progress. Because of his alertness, we have kept pace with national educational advancement, the ultimate recipient and beneficiary of which advancement has been the individual student of East Hartford High School. The quality of our education is reflected in the acceptance to and performance of graduates in top colleges in the country and the demand by business and industry for graduates of East Hartford's business students. For this quality of educational opportunities we are thankful to Mr. Dillon.

Though Mr. Dillon stresses the need for strong academic standing and advancement, he is still aware that "all work and no play make Jack a dull boy." To inspire student spirit and add to the complete development of the individual, Mr. Dillon has led the growth of our extra-curricular program.

Remembered by many of us are the "man to man" talks we have had with Mr. Dillon, his willingness and interest in hearing the student viewpoint with always a word of encouragement and hope. For many of us it was a second chance; for some congratulations on an achievement; for others an inspiring word toward better progress. We were always treated as adults and not as children. Mr. Dillon never discouraged us by criticism but inspired us with his faith in youth.

As we reach this step in our growth, we can look back with appreciation to Mr. Dillon for the results of his imaginative, energetic, and forceful leadership as the contribution of a solid stepping stone to our future achievement.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Donovan, Mr. Morris N. Zaur, Mr. William J. Murphy, Mrs. Louise N. Shea.

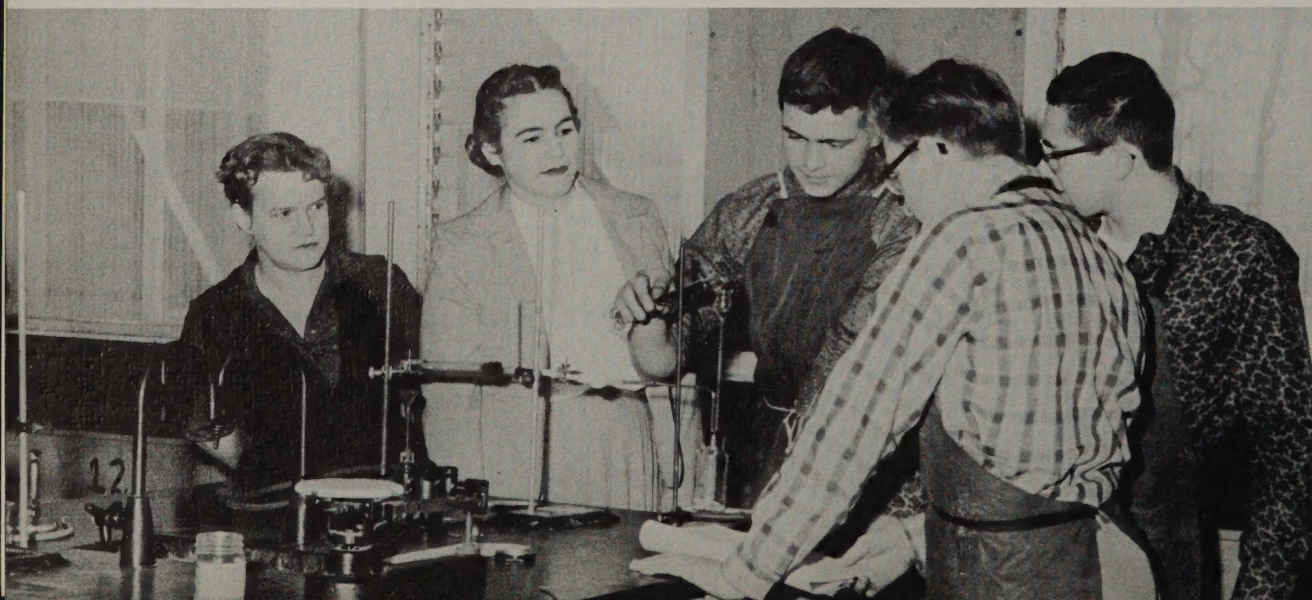

With Foresight Board Plans for Growth

With foresight to the resultant needs placed by our growing student body upon the school plant, the curriculum, and the personnel, the Board of Education was prepared to meet the change with deeds rather than words. With the addition of the new wing and with added personnel, teachers and students were little aware that our student numbers had increased from 1495 in 1954 to 2096 in the Fall of 1959, exactly 600 more. Since the strain of added numbers was minimized by the action of the Board, we are more aware of our numbers from statistics than from stress. As students we felt lucky not to be a part of a two-shift day so prevalent among growing schools who had not foreseen their need with action.

Board members, working closely with Dr. Langford and Mr. Paquette, strive to give East Hartford's youth the finest educational opportunities with the best teaching personnel, the latest in equipment, and modern buildings.

Faculty and students alike are grateful to the Board of Education for their keen interest and concern for the quality of the education of East Hartford's future citizens.

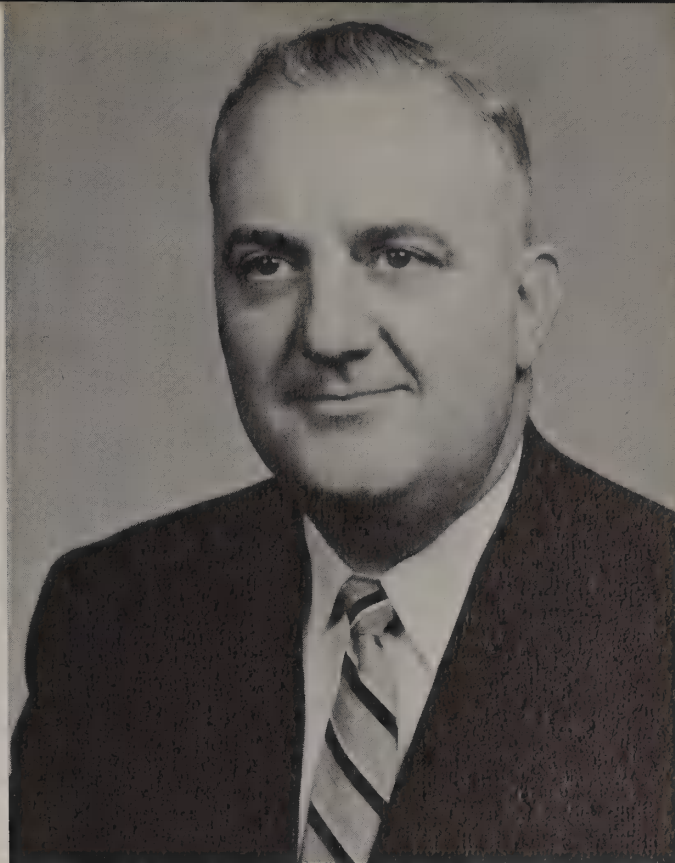

Board members visit school. Mrs. Piller and Mrs. Butler observe progress of advanced placement chemistry class.

Superintendent Promotes School Advancement

During his eleven years as Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Langford has seen East Hartford's school population skyrocket — a growth in numbers not equaled in any other eleven-year period.

While planning for necessary physical accommodations, Dr. Langford has never lost sight of the quality of instruction necessary for the individual to work up to his fullest capacity. This is manifest in the democratic educational opportunities offered to East Hartford's youth regardless of the student's innate ability. Classes are now offered to the mentally retarded trainable and mentally retarded educable as well as added opportunities to the accelerated child. The addition, during Dr. Langford's superintendency, of a summer school and an adult evening school have made education a year-round program in East Hartford. To increase the efficiency of the East Hartford educational system, a school social worker, a reading consultant, an assistant director of elementary instruction, a senior nurse, and other personnel in special areas have been added. Eighty per cent of our existing classrooms are new and an additional ten percent have been modernized since Dr. Langford has been with us.

With gratitude and admiration we speak of the many educational accomplishments of Dr. Langford, but most outstanding and inspiring to all of us are the warmth and kindness which Dr. Langford, midst his busy schedule, reveals to all who work with him. He has earned the deepest respect and love of us all.

Superintendent of Schools

Dr. Langford visited by students. Joel Diamond, President of the National Honor Society and valedictorian of the Class of '60 and Patricia Sullivan, Secretary of Honor Society, visit Dr. Langford to invite him to speak at the Honor Society Induction.

A Part of Good Education

When a school program reaches the magnitude of East Hartford's, many hours of planning and work must be added to adequately accommodate and implement the actual classroom instruction of the student. The comforts and physical accessibility of our education play a large part in the quality of our education. Our clean, well-equipped, comfortable building, our transportation of hundreds of students by bus, the enlarged office staff are all a result of the careful planning and supervision of Mr. Paquette, our Administrative Assistant to Dr. Langford.

A Center of Activity

No where has the growth of East Hartford High School been felt more acutely than in the Office Department where mountains of clerical work must be done each day for the efficient operation of the school.

To facilitate the performance of this task, new personnel have been added and extra office space staff has been provided.

During the past five years the office staff has expanded to include another secretary, a full-time switchboard operator, and an S.A.A. treasurer.

The direct service to the students which includes the daily bulletin, absentee notices, and public address announcements, is only a small part of the work done by the office staff which contributes to the smooth operation of the school.

Good Health

Our Health Department, under the direction of Mrs. Dean, is a reflection of advanced trends and methods in public school health.

From Fall to Spring, Mrs. Dean is busy checking daily symptoms of both students and faculty members. She also supervises physical examinations and hearing and sight tests.

Keeping pace with preventive medicine, flu "shots" were administered to faculty members the past two years. Polio "shots" were given to desiring students in 1958.

A detailed health record of each student is kept by Mrs. Dean.

Mrs. Dean's thoroughness catches early symptoms as well as would-be class dodgers. Senior Mark Thomas awaits the decision.

Department Heads and Administration meet after mid-year marking period to discuss successes and failures of student body.

To accomodate the student growth of 825 students in the past 10 years, the faculty has increased from 59 members in 1950 to 103 in 1960.

Guidance for Growth

The educational, vocational, social, and emotional growth of the individual is the goal of the Guidance Department. So that the student may have a better chance to approach the peak of his powers and to have a richer, fuller, more satisfying life in school and out — both now and in the future — the East Hartford High School Guidance Department offers the services of eight trained counselors.

Through a complete testing and counseling program, the student becomes aware of his assets and liabilities. By knowing himself, the student is better able to chart a more direct route to individual success and happiness, and to be a worthwhile contribution to society.

Testing and counseling are but a small part of the responsibilities of the Guidance Department.

The importance of planning and adjustment is realized even before the student reaches high school. Freshman counselors visit eighth grade classes to orient future high school freshmen to high school procedure.

Each year student successes and failures are noted. Finally in the senior year before leaving the shelter, students are aided in their choice of a vocation, a college, or a technical school by the senior counselors.

Mrs. Gaines has helped many secure part-time and permanent employment which has been not only a financial aid, but also an aid in giving exploratory vocational experience.

Language Skills Developed

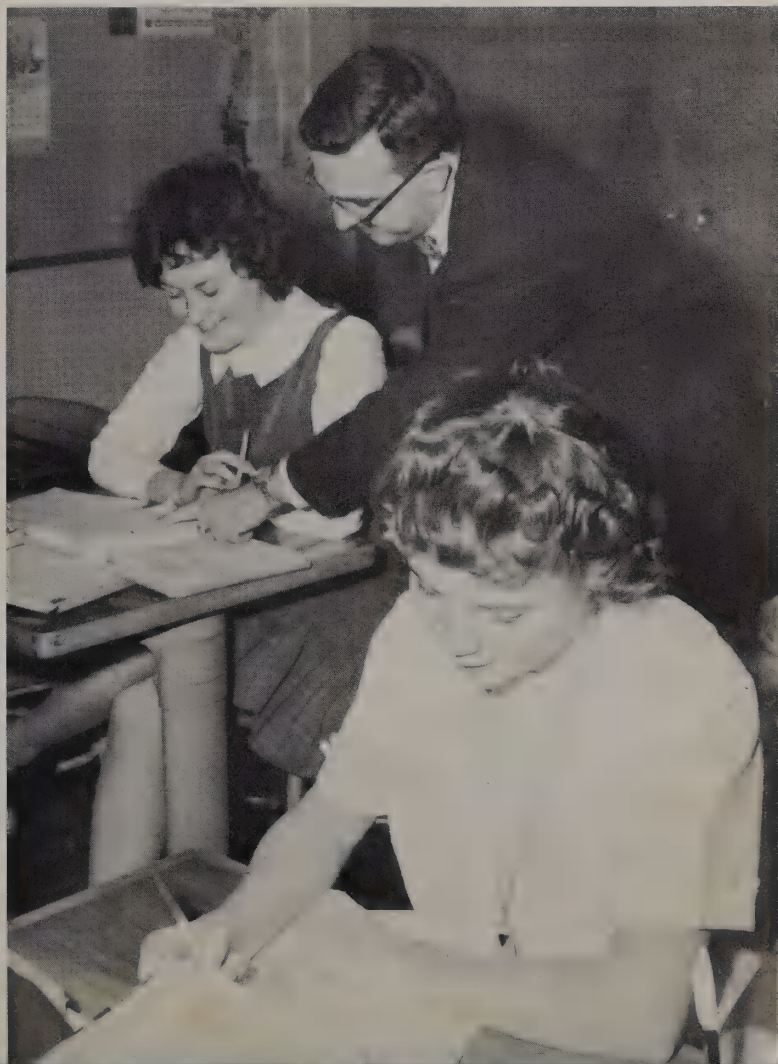

Striving toward student perfection in oral and written expression with an understanding and appreciation of good literature has always been the aim of the English Department. With more and more students seeking college entry or business careers where the mastery of grammar, punctuation, and vocabulary building are so necessary, it has become the duty of every department to be conscious of the student's English usage and progress.

The English Department today is spending more time in reading improvement and comprehension and in vocabulary building. A unit in speech for sophomore students is being planned.

For the past two years, English students have had an opportunity to attend the American Shakespeare Festival Theater at Stratford. Each year Shakespearian players visit East Hartford to give excerpts from several of Shakespeare's plays.

To keep abreast of the growing school population and to maintain and improve its standards, the English Department has increased its faculty membership in the past five years from eleven teachers to twenty teachers.

Social Studies Inspire Good Citizenship

Growth in the Social Studies Department is evidenced not only by the increased student enrollment, but also by an enriched program.

This year marks the re-introduction of ancient history into the college curriculum. Teachers of the subject reported an enthusiastic reception of the course whose subject matter has been expanded to include recent findings of historians and archaeologists about the Far East.

Since the purpose of the study of social studies is to enable the future citizen to better adapt himself to the modern political and economic world, as well as to contribute to its efficiency and continuance, social studies students are taking part in real-life political situations.

This Spring a new precedent was set when a group of students participated in the Annual Model Congress held at America International College in Springfield. Ultimate objectives of this congress are to provide practical experience in the use of the democratic processes and to serve as a compliment to the high school social studies.

A notable contribution to the experience and understanding of students is the Mock U. N. Assembly held each year at Hillyer College. Representatives from our school spent a day at the U. N. headquarters in New York.

The Foreign Policy Association sponsored a workshop in foreign countries at the Children's Museum which was attended by two of our freshmen.

About 90 pupils volunteered to prepare for the United Nations Examination held on March 3.

Television became an important medium this year in the teaching of history. Each morning from 11:00 to 11:30, Mr. Duncan's history class listened to interviews of experts in modern history and economics.

SOCIAL STUDIES

A knowledge of geography is essential for a student to understand the global happenings in a changing world. Mr. Cardello and students examine the strategic location of Hawaii.

Reading for Intellectual Growth

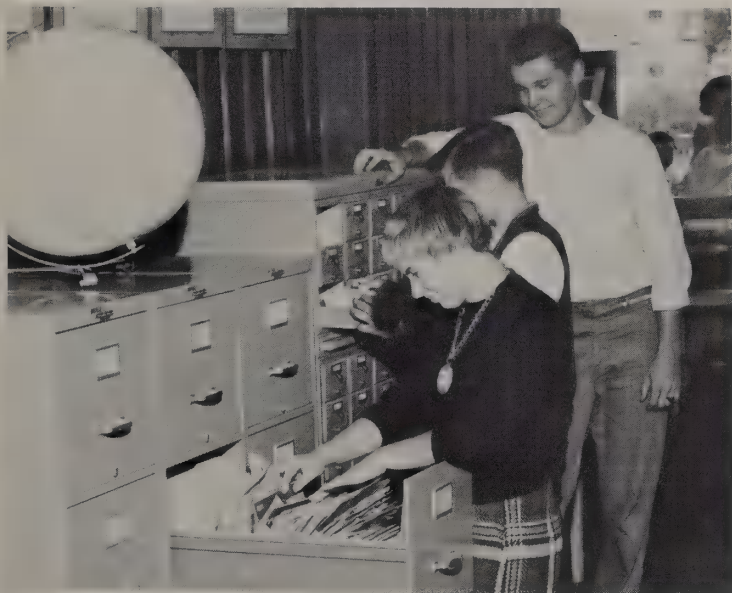

To meet the demands of our accelerated educational system, our library has added a fine array of publications and various other periodicals to its shelves. This material is used to supplement not only the standard courses but also the new Science and Ancient History classes. Since the recent expansion of the English department, Mrs. Walsh has acquired all the necessary books needed in these classes.

The efficiency of our library, the result of Mrs. Walsh's student staff and her own untiring efforts, has brought praise from both students and faculty. Always ready to aid any student or teacher, the library staff has cut short endless searching for some obscure reference.

The library's appeal does not end with merely its use as a reference room. The wide variety of both classic and contemporary novels offer reading pleasure to the most discerning student. Another library feature is the presentation of many displays throughout the school year which are both enjoyable and educational.

The library's thorough filing system enables students to quickly find the information they desire.

Displays and exhibits enhance the beauty and interest of the library. Jerre Dowden and Roland Cardin are busy arranging photography exhibit.

Language Growth

With the increased importance of maintaining good relations and understanding between nations, the study of a language whether it be Latin, French, or Spanish, has become an essential part of everyone's education. By being exposed to another culture, the student learns not only the mechanics of another language but he also acquires a broad background of the literature, philosophy, and history of the country, together with a deeper understanding and appreciation of his own language and literature.

More students are discovering that even the two-year minimum requirement of a foreign language does not give them sufficient background to meet the demands of college prerequisites. The Language Department has expanded so that it might give the student ample opportunity to obtain a complete language education.

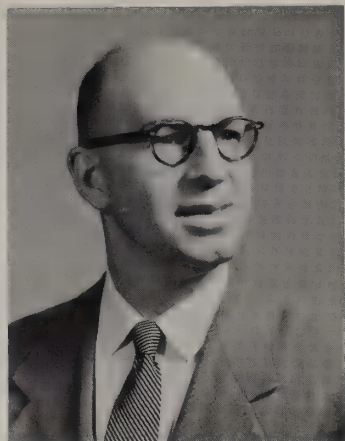

A modern-language laboratory is planned for next year so that the French and Spanish classes may gain a more realistic accent by hearing their adopted languages spoken as they should be. Also starting next year, four years of Spanish and French will be offered. Until this year, the fluctuation of the number of students interested in third and fourth-year Latin determined whether the study of Cicero or Vergil would be offered. Now both courses are taught at the same time.

Mathematics for All

From four teachers in 1950 to ten teachers in 1960, the Mathematics Department has adapted itself to the growing needs of its students.

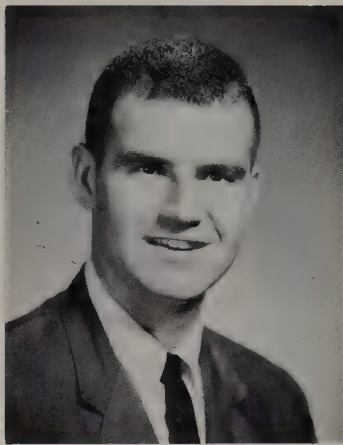

Full four-year courses are now offered in each curriculum. In the past four years mathematics IV and introduction to calculus have been added to meet the growing needs. Stress has been placed upon both the theory of mathematics and its practical application and demonstration.

Presently 1150 students are enrolled in mathematics courses as opposed to barely 400 in 1949. Of this total 690 are taking college preparatory mathematics courses.

Growth in the Mathematics Department has evidenced itself in added classrooms, new equipment, increased staff members, and enlarged curriculum.

East Hartford High School has responded to this demand with nine well-equipped science rooms and eleven science teachers. Advanced placement chemistry has been added to the curriculum in answer to homogeneous grouping.

Business Education Keeps Pace With Growth

The Business Department has kept pace with both the physical growth of the school and the growth of our economic world. At present more students are enrolled in one or more subjects of the business curriculum than in any other curriculum. The typing rooms are literally "bulging at the seams." In 1959, with the increased popularity of typing among both business and college students, room 105 was added. This year, each typing room was equipped to accommodate 36 instead of the usual 32.

In 1956, the Business Department consisted of ten teachers. In 1960 fifteen experienced teachers, using the most modern equipment and latest methods demanded by the business world, provide for East Hartford students a business education as complete as that offered in a business college.

The demand for East Hartford High School business graduates and the high rate of employment of graduates from the clerical, stenographic, and distributive education sequences speaks for the completeness and efficiency of the business education department.

To be Craftsmen or Handymen

The Industrial Arts Department which started many years ago with the subject of drafting has now branched into the fields of woodworking, metal work, electricity, graphic arts, and driver education.

With the enactment of more rigid traffic and safety regulations in this age of car ownership, the need to offer driver education in the public school system became apparent. To meet this increasing student need and interest, seventh and eighth period classes in driver education have been added to the usual six-period day.

Courses in industrial arts give students an opportunity to explore the regions of industry that they may pursue upon graduation. Aside from vocational values, boys desiring a practical knowledge of repair and construction or a foundation for a future hobby choose industrial arts subjects.

Training Ground for Future Homemakers

Successfully maintaining a happy home is one of the most difficult, though rewarding tasks, in the world, because an efficient homemaker must be endowed with a wide variety of incongruous talents. She must be able to make Sunday's leftovers taste like viands fit for a king, to scrub the floors, to follow the rules of good decorating, and household hints, as well as to be a chauffeur, a secretary, an economist, and a gracious hostess. Above all, she must be the calm, reassuring angel who cheerfully copes with catastrophes which range from the magnitude of a burned steak to figuring out a way to pay a mountain of bills.

The Home Economics Department is a training ground for young homemakers. In the study of marriage and family living, home planning and decorating, sewing, cooking, and home nursing, each girl learns to cope with the multitude of problems of running a home, and gains a valuable background which will serve her well for many years to come.

Music for Cultural Growth

Not to be outdone by expansion and advancement in other departments, growth in our Music Department has been continuous since East Hartford High School students have occupied their present building.

Seniors may recall days of Freshman Glee Club spent in the chorus room where presently no music group meets either because of the size of the group or the need of the rest of the school for extra study room. These groups now meet in the auditorium or the band room.

There are some six choruses, both an intermediate and a senior band, and an orchestra, all of which have increased in number as well as in excellence during the past few years.

In addition, the Music Department boasts of a music theory class which developed as a full-time course four years ago, and special extra-curricular activities such as Girls' Ensemble, Boys' Quartet, and Dance Band.

Yet growth in the Music Department is truly measured neither in the increasing number of students in its classes nor the continuous success of its program, but in the sensitivity to beauty, the realization of the value of music, and the ability to cooperate and set high standards which are developed through music experience. Through such contact we become better men and women.

Fritz Mahler, Conductor of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra, visits East Hartford High School to give special instruction to the Choir, previous to the annual concert with the Hartford Symphony Orchestra.

Band gets into position for half-time performance. Leading are Peter Behmke, Carol Maragnano, marjorette, and Louis Comeau.

Individual lessons improve quality of band. Mr. Pardus instructs to Walter Desruisseaux.

Physical Education Program Expands

The growth in the student body of East Hartford High School has also brought about an expansion in the Physical Education Department, not only in teaching personnel and program, but also in accommodations and equipment.

During the past four years two new teachers have been added to the department, Mrs. Rohan for the girls, and Mr. Meyers for the boys. Lockers were installed to accommodate the increase in students in the summer of '59. To insure efficient leadership for the enlarged gym classes, the number of student leaders was increased.

Physical education classes which meet twice weekly provide a rigorous course designed to build healthy bodies and encourage sportsmanship. To carry out this program to its fullest, the outdoor play area was expanded. The girls were presented with their own soccer field which allowed an increased number of girls to participate more frequently in outdoor sports and allowed the boys to have sole use of their football area for physical education classes.

Besides the twice-weekly classes, the spacious and well-equipped gymnasium is used regularly for the numerous afterschool activities offered by the Physical Education Department.

For neglecting to lock purse during gym class, Phyllis Smith good naturedly pays five-cent fine to Mrs. Corbett.

Physical fitness is the prime goal of physical education classes.

Indispensable to Efficient Operation

The shiny newly waxed floors, so obvious to all after vacations, are a small indication of the ceaseless duties of Mr. Burnham and his custodial staff. With Mr. Burnham's watchful eye, neither age nor the intensive use of over 2000 students is apparent.

Mrs. Nolan's warmth and friendliness are as much a part of her service to EHHS as is her performance of her job as matron. With her understanding ways and cheerful attitude, Mrs. Nolan holds a spot in the heart of every girl.

Seniors of 1960 Reach Many Goals

The growth in leadership, scholarship and responsibility of the Class of 1960 during the past four years has established a firm foundation upon which we will build our futures. These memorable years, marked by new and exciting challenges and experiences, have prepared us to meet the varied fortunes of life.

To the administration, faculty, and our class advisers, we extend our thanks for four years of conscientious service and guidance. I hope that we may reward them by making ourselves and our lives reflect the ideals and principles to which they have dedicated themselves.

For the Class of 1960 I wish the fulfillment of every aspiration. If you show as much enthusiasm in the years ahead as you did this year in the Gazette Fund Raising Drive, the class social activities, and academic endeavor, you will achieve your objectives in life.

Juniors Look

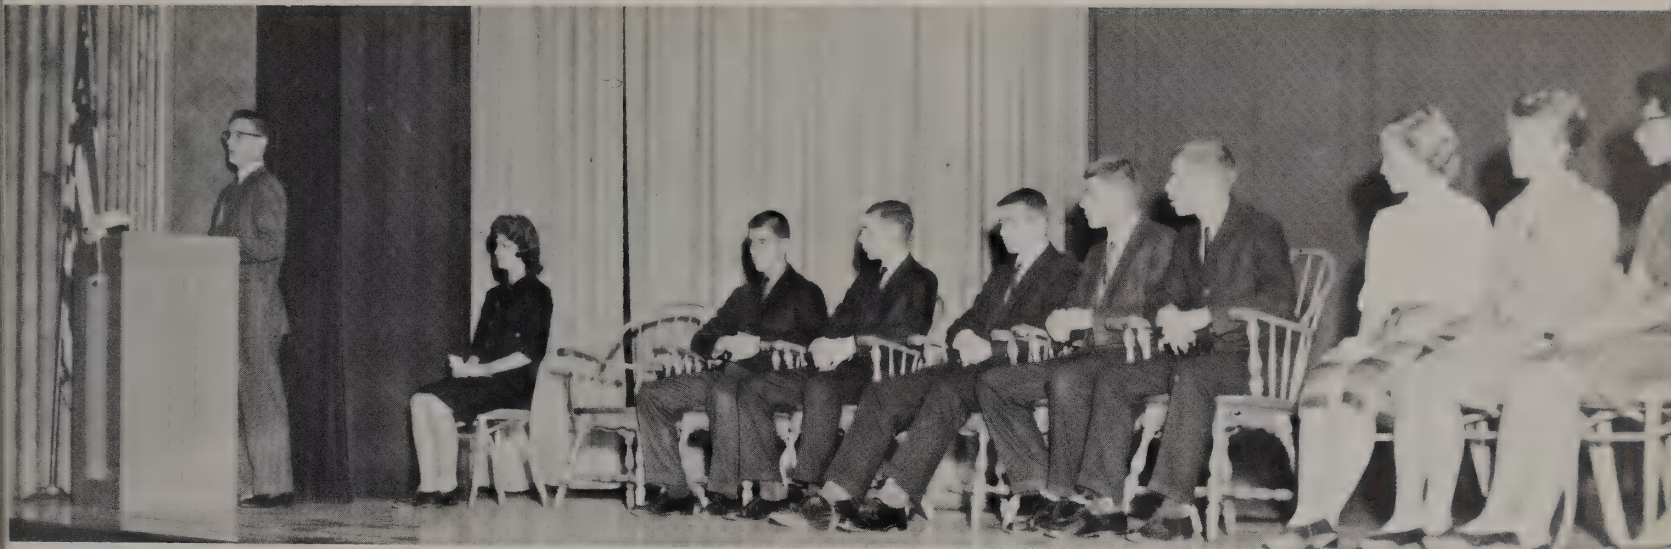

We, as juniors, stand on the threshold of our final and biggest year in our high-school lives. Looking back to the two years we spent as underclassmen and comparing them to the present, we realize the growth we have undergone not only physically and socially, but also, and most important, mentally. We realize that the philosophy we form in high school, as well as our scholastic accomplishments, forms the cornerstone of our future.

We look to our senior year aspiring to set a worthy example of leadership and scholarship. We look forward, too, to the completion of our four years of education at East Hartford High School as a time of many precious moments spent in classrooms, the cafeteria, the gymnasium, the auditorium, and the halls — a time of gathering pleasant memories to treasure the rest of our lives. Through earnest and diligent work, we expect to create a record which will make us proud to say, "We belong to the Class of 1961."

We thank the Class of 1960 for the help and companionship they have provided us in the past three years, and we wish them God's blessing in their future endeavors.

The assurance of individual success and happiness and of a better world is to begin now to give our fullest to all worthwhile situations at home, school, and church — at work and at play.

With the present-day emphasis on obtaining higher education to better develop ourselves to contribute to society, we are made to realize early the necessity of assuming more and more responsibility in scholastic and class activities.

FRESHMAN EXECUTIVE BOARD

Freshmen Assume High School Role

We entered East Hartford High School with a feeling of enthusiasm and curiosity. As the year progressed and we became adjusted to our new life, our curiosity was replaced by a determination to do our best in this building of opportunity. We realized that what we intend to be will in a large part depend upon the role we play as high-school students.

In the last four years the number of freshmen has increased over 18%. With our large freshman class we shall be expected to contribute in proportion to our size. We approach our sophomore year zestful not only to maintain the good record of East Hartford High School but wherever possible to surpass it. We shall try to make our class an example to those forthcoming.

Student Council

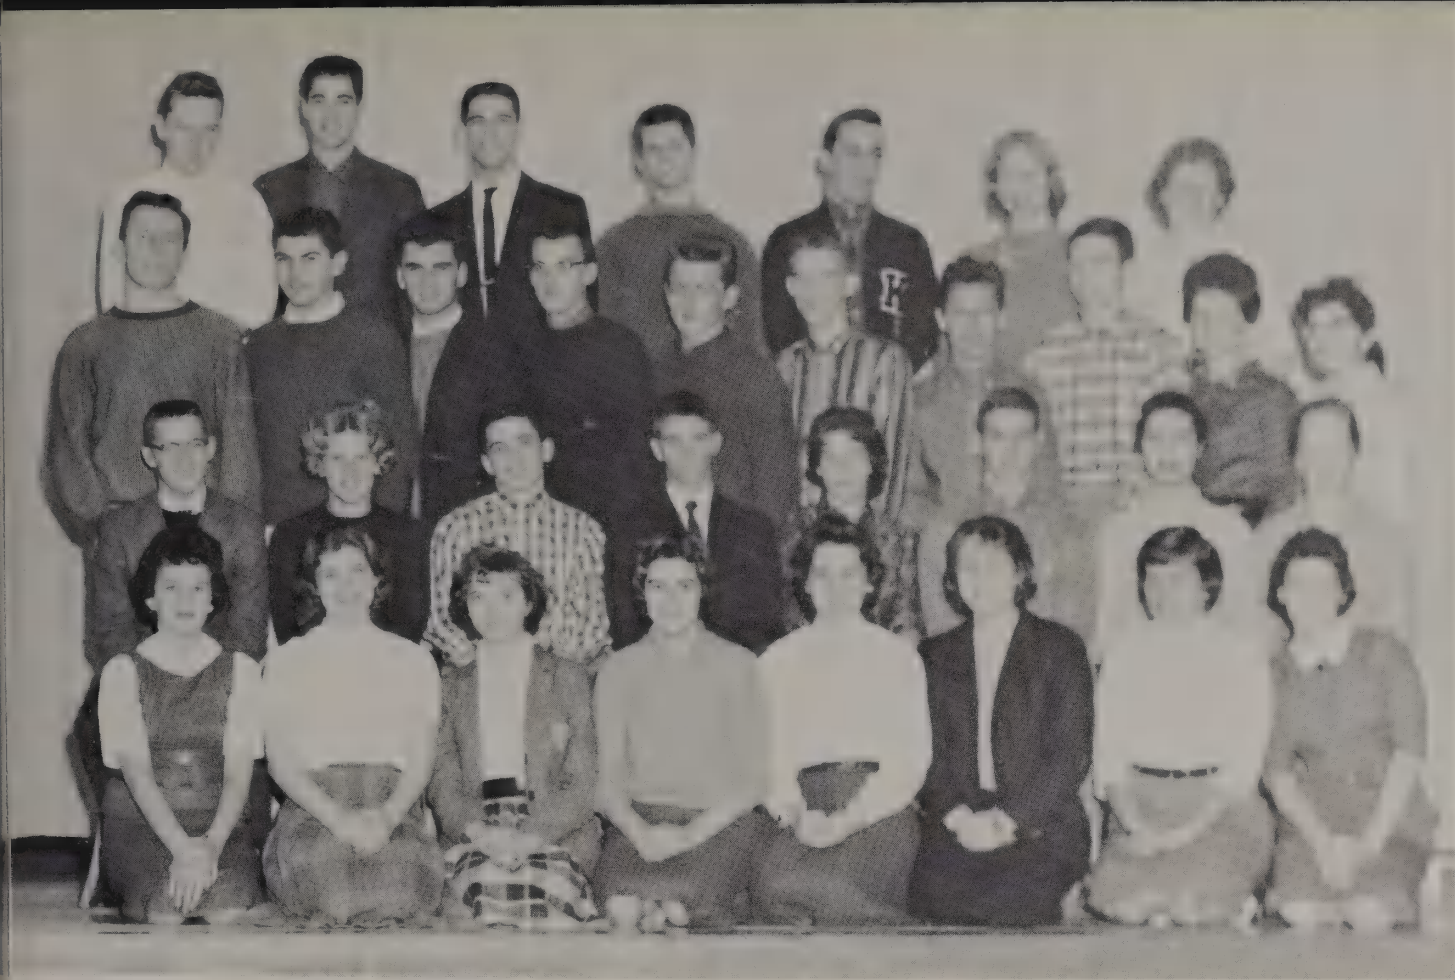

The Student Council of East Hartford High School is comprised of one representative from each home room. With our upsurging enrollment and the addition of a new wing, it was foreseen that the increased Council membership could become ineffective. Reorganization of the Student Council was inevitable. The plans for reorganization include the election of six voting senators from each class.

The Student Activity Association coordinates all income from student activities for redistribution to all extra-curricular organizations.

The membership of the National Honor Society is drawn from the upper sixth of the junior and senior classes. Members must possess the four qualities of character, scholarship, leadership, and service.

A tutoring service is provided for students requiring extra help in academic subjects. Each member of the Honor Society offers tutoring in the subject in which he is most proficient.

The annual induction, to be held in March, will highlight the initiation of new members and a guest speaker.

Voice of the Student

After five years of growth and improvement under the leadership of Miss Neville, the Pilot, now supervised by Mr. Raccagni, continues to advance.

Working closely with Mr. Raccagni is Editor-in-Chief Janice Roman and her twelve editors. Advising the business and advertising managers is Mr. Corrado.

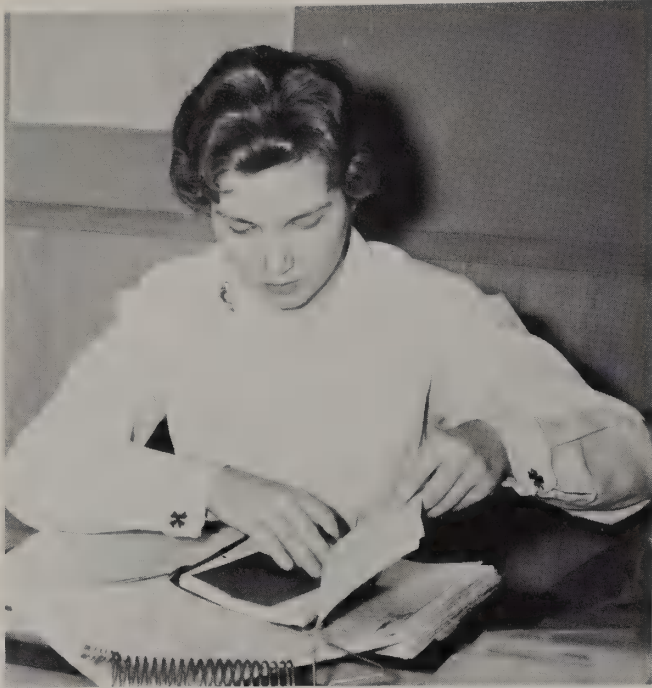

With the addition of various features and with increased coverage, the Pilot has become increasingly more popular, and students anxiously await its distribution. A monthly newspaper, the Pilot informs students and faculty of news and views of school activities and personnel. To keep the reader completely informed, the Pilot contains an editorial page, a sports page, student interviews and special features.

Each year members of the Pilot Staff attend the Columbia Scholastic Press Conference held in March at Columbia University. Here experts in the field of journalism conduct classes in the style and technique of news coverage. For the past two years the Pilot, competing with school newspapers throughout the country, received a second place rating for schools of its class.

Improvement for the Pilot is inevitable with the addition of a journalism class to the high school curriculum for the coming year. The course, to be taught by Mr. Raccagni, will meet each day. Three days each week will be devoted to theory and two days to laboratory work.

The 1960 Janus Presents

Each June students and faculty anxiously and enthusiastically await the arrival of the new Janus. For the past 3 years Janus Staffs have presented their school with a book receiving a first place award by the Columbia Scholastic Association. This pictorial account of life at East Hartford High School is a result of long hours of work and sacrifice of fun. The reward for their time well spent has been the positive reaction of purchasers of the Janus, the increased demand for the book among underclassmen, and the first place rating in a national contest judged by experts in journalism.

Because of the growth of the school — increased student body, added activities, more homerooms, additional subjects — the Janus Staff has spent more hours than ever to present the student body with this, the 1960 Janus, a complete account of every department, homeroom, and activity which existed during the school year of 1960. The Staff has striven to equal the good work done by previous staffs and to make improvements wherever possible.

Janus Helpers

Knowing that "you get what you pay for" applies to the purchase of most things, the Janus Advertising and Business Staffs have made possible the new size of the 1960 Janus. Through their efforts, the Janus has been able to grow in size and quality to accommodate in pictures the growth of the school.

The Advertising Staff has canvassed the extensive business area of East Hartford, whose businessmen have responded enthusiastically. Each morning during the Janus sales drive, home-room representatives of the Business Staff visited their assigned rooms to sell the Janus.

Members of the Art Staff are responsible for the attractive sales posters that are seen about the school during the sales campaign. This year's cover design was drawn by Paul Weirup, who during below-freezing weather, sat outside the school making the sketch of the school which is silk screened on the cover of the '60 Janus.

Quill and Scroll is Introduced to EHHS

This year marks the introduction of the National Journalistic Honor Society for High School Students, Quill and Scroll, to East Hartford High School. To be elected to membership one must have made an outstanding contribution in the field of journalism and maintain a high scholastic average.

The induction ceremony at which the ten charter members were initiated was conducted by the members of the William Hall High School chapter. Preparations are under way for another induction ceremony to be held in the Spring.

As a service project, the Quill and Scroll is compiling a booklet which will serve as a reference for incoming members of the Pilot and Janus staffs.

The officers of Quill and Scroll are Heidi Hinkleman, President; Michael Pernal, Vice-President; Elderia Franckling, Secretary; and Janice Roman, Treasurer.

Other charter members include, Mary Keleher, Claire Major, Dona McGee, Nancy Merk, Patricia MacMillan, and Carol Pansky.

Inductees are initiated by the members of the Hall High School chapter.

Jo-Ann Forbis, Head of make-up, makes up Gordon Olson, President of Masquers.

Mary and Joseph portrayed by Stella Samiotis and Robert White for the Christmas Tableaux.

"The Play's the Thing"

Members of the Masquers soon learn that acting alone does not make the show a success. Good directing, good make-up, appropriate setting, good lighting, good staging, and then finally good advertising must all be present to make the show a success. To insure these elements, the Masquers Executive Board and Committee Chairmen are composed of students interested in each of the above phases of show business.

Masquers who accumulate enough quality points for their proficiency in dramatics are eligible to be elected to the honorary dramatic society, the National Thespian Society. This year there are fifteen juniors and seniors who are members of the Thespian group.

Two outstanding performances were produced by the Masquers. "All My Sons," a three-act play by Arthur Miller was presented in the East Hartford High School Auditorium in March. "High Window," a one-act contest play was presented for the Regional Competition at Central Connecticut State College. The Christmas tableaux staged by members of the Masquers, created an effective atmosphere and background for the annual Christmas music program directed by Miss Rayner.

Masquers and Thespians regretted the resignation of Mrs. Wilson their director for five years. She was succeeded by Miss Anne Clark and Mr. William Gay.

Club Membership a Vocational Aid

Many students while still in high school have come to some decision regarding their vocational choice; others, though still unsure, feel that they have an aptitude or desire to enter a special field. To give these students an opportunity to learn more about the vocation of their choice, East Hartford High School offers membership in one or more career clubs.

Future Teachers Club members have an opportunity each year to do actual teaching in local grammar schools for two days under the supervision of trained teachers.

Future Business Leaders, through field trips to some of the area businesses and lectures learn more about the demands of the modern business world. Members get actual experience doing jobs of a business nature for their school.

Future Nurses visit local hospitals to observe hospital activity as well as to learn requirements for one to be a nurse.

Future Engineers discuss the many facets of the future engineer, requirements for and contribution to the technological development of the nation. Visits to local industries give the boys an opportunity to see successful engineers at work.

Club Membership Assures Wise Use of Time

East Hartford High students with high scholastic averages are also active members of one or more of the school's many clubs. Club membership is a means to wise use of time, offering an opportunity to learn to work with people while acquiring further interest in or knowledge of a worthwhile activity that may lead to vocational or avocational use. Many clubs offer members both a learning experience and an opportunity to help others.

The Distributive Education Club is composed of students interested in retailing as a career. The Girls Club affords an opportunity for the girls of East Hartford to know each other better while serving the school in the capacity as hostesses; they feature a fashion show and good-grooming program each year. The Library Club membership is open to all students interested in library work. Members work as library assistants. The Science Club is composed of students with a keen interest in science.

Club Members Attend United Nations

Students interested in world government and world problems find that the International Relations Club gives them an opportunity to increase their knowledge and to express their ideas. To be better able to speak and debate, many members of the International Relations Club are also members of either or both the Debating Club and the Public Speaking Club.

A highlight of the year was a combined meeting of the I.R.C. and the Debating Club when both clubs met for a debate and social evening. Each year members are chosen from the I.R.C. to become delegates to the United Nations Model Assembly held at the University of Hartford in April. Preparatory to attending the Model Assembly, the delegates visit the United Nations in New York where they interview the actual delegates from the countries which they plan to represent. This year East Hartford is representing Burma and Norway.

The Debating Club presented a debate to the upper-classmen during a Fall assembly program. Judith Plummer, a member of both the Debating Club and the Public Speaking Club was winner of the American Legion Oratorical Contest this year. Students who enjoy oratory or who desire to improve their speaking ability become members of the Public Speaking Club.

International Relations Club and Debating Club meet for debate topic on the Cultural Exchange Program Between the United States and Russia.

LATIN CLUB

Understanding Other Lands

Increased travel and communication between continents has brought our neighbors closer to us. This proximity, together with the crusade for world peace has emphasized the importance of better knowing our world friends. Foreign language clubs at East Hartford High School act as a medium for increased understanding. Through the use of films, speakers, and visits to local museums each member gains a new interest and understanding of the language he is studying as well as the customs of the people and the geography of the country from which the language originated.

During the Christmas season each language club has its own party which includes the Christmas customs of the country from which the language originated.

The large size of the language clubs is indicative of their popularity. The Latin Club is advised by Miss Larrabee and Miss Agostino. Miss Italia is the adviser to the French Club. The Spanish Club is advised by Miss Moriarty and Miss Perra.

A Hobbyist's Answer

The answer to the hobbyist's dream is to join one or more of East Hartford's many hobby clubs. Particularly active are the members of the Chefs Club whose skill and training are obvious to faculty members at their annual Christmas party.

The Art Club, too, serves the school with its many attractive displays, decorations, and posters seen about the school. Other hobby clubs, all with active membership, are the Photography Club, the Chess Club, and the Stamp and Coin Club.

With exact measurements, Wayne Spencer and Kenneth Anderson prepare cookie batter for faculty Christmas party.

Students with a desire to gain clerical experience and, at the same time help in one of the school offices, join a Helper's Group. These students give up one or more of their study-hall periods a week to type, file, or deliver attendance sheets.

Helpers work in the Office of the Dean of Women, the Vice-Principal's Office, the Guidance Office, or in the Nurse's Office.

An active club with large membership is the Audio-Visual Aids Club. This group, directed by Miss Frye, is instructed in the use and care of the movie and opaque projector, tape recorder, record player, film strips, and slides. These efficient operators deliver the equipment, operate it for the classroom teacher, and return it to the audio-visual aids room.

Song Brings Joy

With song in their hearts, East Hartford's many vocal groups bring joy and pleasure to all who hear them. Their huge membership and perfection of performance is a manifestation of the zest for good music that exists among East Hartford's students — ■ zest which is the result of the many years of work and a love of music of their leader, Miss Rayner.

A vocal music group exists for all who wish to reap the satisfaction of expressing themselves musically and of working with a group toward the achievement of and perfection of an art. Freshman Glee Club and Freshman Chorus give students an early opportunity to lay the ground work for joining future vocal groups. The harmonic performance of the Choir in their Choir gowns stir the hearts of the listener and bring responses of praise.

Outstanding performances of the year were the Fall Concert with Fritz Mahler, conductor of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra, conducting; the Christmas Concert; the Spring Concert; various appearances at assembly programs; and the large representation of East Hartford High's top vocalists in the All-State Chorus.

Band Inspires Spirit

With pride East Hartford fans watch their band perform at half-time. A welcome respite from the tension of the competing teams is the demonstration of percision marching and music entertainment provided by the band, led by their majorette and baton twirlers. Their performance is the result of their long hours of practice and proficient coaching by Mr. Pardus.

The string orchestra with its many violinists is a reflection of talent and training, as the violinists, their bows moving simultaneously in the same direction, create harmonious music.

Students with a flare for the modern rhythms have fun while practicing the contemporary music of their time as members of the school swing band.

Neither rain, snow, wind, nor sleet can dampen the spirits nor dim the performance of those inspirers of enthusiasm and school spirit — our Cheerleaders, Drill Team, and Baton Twirlers. Behind their team and school, win or lose, their almost professional performance and trim appearance sparks exuberance and optimism from the cheering crowds. Their early-morning and late after-school hours of practice proves the axiom that "practice makes perfect."

Membership to and continuance in the Cheerleaders, Drill Team, and Baton Twirlers is based upon scholastic standing, performance and faithfulness to rehearsal attendance.

VARSITY FOOTBALL TEAM

Injuries and Inexperience Plague Hornets

After several spectacular won-lost records in the past three years, this year's edition of the East Hartford High School football team had a great reputation to live up to. Heavily hit by graduation of the class of '59, the Hornets lost their entire line and a good portion of the starting backfield. Thrust into starting position to fill the void were seniors with little varsity experience.

In their opening game, the inexperienced Hornets thrashed Norwich as Foley, Bessette, and Mudano paced the Hornets to a 38-6 victory. Then East Hartford's troubles began as a determined Weaver team handed the Hornets the first of six successive losses, 18-0. The Hornets bowed valiantly before Bulkeley and Hillhouse, then played New Britain to a standstill. Bell, Bessette, Galanek, and Hutt being injured enroute, the Hornets were unable to field a first-string team against Hartford and New London, faltering badly in both encounters. Beset by injuries, Coach Giardi called upon freshman Don Moreau, who proved himself at once as he scored in each of his first two games.

Finally, against arch-rival Manchester, on Thanksgiving Day the Hornets fielded a complete injury-free team. Taking charge from the outset, the Hornet smothered Manchester as Bell and Moreau paced the 18-0 win. Even though the Hornets finished wiht a 2-6 record, the season was a success in the eyes of many because of the sterling victory over Manchester.

If the freshman year is an indication of things to come, East Hartford High School should boast a fine football team in the future.

Spectacular Comeback

By Hornets

This was to be the year for basketball at East Hartford — and it was. It looked like the same East Hartford team of old as the Hornets dropped their first six games; then the team suddenly caught fire to win seven of its last ten games and became one of the best and most highly feared teams in the state. With a few breaks the Hornets could well have won the four games that they lost by less than five points and been tournament bound.

Led by the fine all-around play of Captain and all Capital District Conference ace Kurt Kilty, the Hornets shot a fabulous 46 per cent from the floor as a team on their way to their best record in recent years. Dave Molumphy provided another bright spot in the Hornet picture as he scored 32 points against Norwich to come within one point of tying the school record of most points in the game set by his brother Tom.

Leaving the Hornet scene along with Captain Kilty are Dick Bessette, Joe Gauches, Fran Sullivan, Jerry Maguire, John Cavanaugh, Paul Giardi, and Bob Boronski. Returning to pace next year's team will be Co-Captain Don Beaudry and Dave Molumphy, Mike Corrado, Tom Kirby, and a host of Junior Varsity hopefuls.

Although Coach Bernard Prusaczyk's first season as varsity coach produced a 7-9 record, it was a successful season and one never to be forgotten by Hornet followers for its many exciting and thrilling moments.

Baron Breaks Five Marks To Lead Hornet Harriers

Coach McCabe with Captains William Baron and Ken Nelson.

Led by the outstanding running of Co-Captains William Baron and Kenneth Nelson, the East Hartford High School Cross-Country Team compiled a 7-4 record, placed third in the Greater Hartford area, and tenth in the state.

Bill Baron starred for the Hornets as he broke all existing East Hartford records for the 2.5 mile race. Baron broke the home-course mark of 12:49 set by Richard Brimley five times and lowered the mark to 12:31. Once again Baron proved his worth as he took the lead from the start to win the Greater Hartford Meet and set another new record. Suffering from a leg injury Baron went on to place tenth in the State Meet and thirty-first in the New England Championships at Boston.

Eight returning lettermen and several promising Junior Varsity runners will provide a solid nucleus for Coach McCabe. Next year's team headed by Co-Captains Warren Brink and David Terrill will be forced to break away from its "pack" running of the past as the Hornets take on a tougher and heavier schedule.

Seven Returning Lettermen to Pace Hornets

The 1959 Hornet Baseball Team finished its season with a record of six wins and five losses. Under the coaching of Mr. Jackston and the leadership of Len Rock, the team faced the toughest competition in the area. Although off to a bad start and a string of bad luck, the team rebounded in the second half of the season by winning five out of its last six games.

The team has a great deal to look forward to this coming season with seven returning lettermen and seasoned veterans at all but two positions. With Co-Captains Ernie Hutt and Ron Lysik leading the way, East Hartford should play in important role in the outcome of the C.D.C. race. Along with Hutt and Lysik, returning lettermen Kurt Kilty, Fran Sullivan, Bill Mudano, Buzzy Purrington, and Bob Boronski should be a big factor in making this possible.

Individual Performances Highlight Track Season

The 1959 Track Team, under the leadership of Co-Captains Peter Wlochowski and David Sequist, and the fine coaching of Mr. Carey and Mr. Giardi, completed its season with a seven and three record.

The past performances of Lester Bell and James Neary in the sprint events and the broad jump, William Baron in the mile, up and coming Richard Niemczyk in the javelin, and Robert Gerstenlauer in the discus, express the hope that once again the Hornets can boast a fine season.

Even though heavily hit by graduation, the team has come up with able replacements in Leon Catlin in the shot put, and Alan Proulx and William Shook in the pole vault. Juniors Phillip Bruce and Edward Arnold should provide sorely needed help in the running events.

The team will lack depth, but it is anticipated that stellar individual performances and the influx of underclassmen will give East Hartford the scoring punch necessary for victory over the top teams in the state.

Girls' Athletic Council Leads Sports Activities

The Girls' Athletic Council, composed of the leaders of the various sports and the captain and co-captains of the Red and Gold Teams, lists as its major activity the presentation of the annual Girls' Sports Night.

Also among its major activities is the presentation of two assemblies. The first assembly, held in the Fall, is for the purpose of acquainting the girls with the wide scope of sports sponsored by the Girls' Athletic Council. Each sport leader gives a brief talk about the sport which she leads including in the talk information concerning location, time, days, and number of joints awarded for participation.

The Girls' Athletic Council closes its activities with an assembly held in the Spring. At this assembly, awards are given to those who have earned points by participating in the numerous sports which make up an integral part of extra-curricular life at East Hartford High School.

President Phyllis Giordano introduces girls' sports program at the Annual Girls' Athletic Council Fall Assembly.

Girls' Leaders Encourage Sports Participation

The girl in the white uniform conducting a gym class is an example of helpfulness and outstanding leadership. The purpose of the Leaders Club is to assist the physical education teachers in demonstrating various skills, to proctor in tests, and to occasionally take over the gym class. A Girls' Leader is always ready to give information and is constant encouragement to her gym class.

To become a member of the Girls' Leaders Club, sophomore and junior girls must take a written and practical examination to demonstrate knowledge of sports. Applicants are then interviewed; the highest rated are selected for the club.

Highlights of the year are the Girls' Leaders banquet and the Girls Leaders picnic.

Advisers to the club are Mrs. Cunningham, Mrs. Corbett and Mrs. Rohan.

After-school soccer sessions are a part of the Girls' Leaders program.

A Night to Remember

The Nineteenth Annual Girls' Sport Night, presented by the Girls' Athletic Council, was held in the John McGrath Gymnasium on April 8.

The traditional shining Red and Gold flashlights and the glittering ribbons were only a part of the unforgettable event. Red Team, led by Captain Lonnie Carlson and Co-Captain Judith Holmes, and Gold Team, led by Captain Susan Fiske and Co-Captain Barbara Seedman, demonstrated their accomplishments in tumbling, folkdancing, apparatus, and balance beams. Also displayed during this spectacular event were basketball and volleyball, the exciting competitive sports between the two teams.

Lonnie Carlson and Sport Leader Mary Lewis demonstrate the lunge.

Sport Leader Valerie Fleming instructs Joan MacFarlane, Roseann McHenry, and Donna McGee in a German folk dance.

Kneeling: Joan Lasko, Sport Leader of Volleyball. Standing: Dorothy Cleary and Marilyn LaVoie, players.

Girls' Sports, Many and Varied

The girls at East Hartford High School have the opportunity to enjoy many athletic activities both indoor and outdoor. These sports are not included in Sport Night. Throughout the year such sports as archery, tennis, softball, badminton, bike hikes, soccer, swimming, bowling, and ping-pong give the girls a well-rounded extra-curricular sports program. This program also includes a number of play days, which enable the girls to participate in competitive sports with students of other schools.

The advisers, Mrs. Cunningham, Mrs. Corbett, and Mrs. Rohan make these numerous activities possible through their helpful supervision.

In Spring and Fall girls enjoy exciting soccer game.

The continuous growth of the Janus has been made possible by the work of the Advertising Staff and the contribution of East Hartford's businessmen. Though the Janus has doubled in size in the past 10 years of rising prices, its price to students has remained the same.

TO THE CLASS OF '60

The East Hartford Gazette sends its hearty congratulations to the Class of 1960 — on your graduation, of course, and on your success last Fall as our important partner in the effort to strengthen East Hartford's hometown newspaper.

We now wish you the best of luck. To the seniors who are college-bound, we hope you'll find the Gazette a welcome "letter from home" each week. To those who step into jobs here in town, we hope the Gazette may help you know even more about your community.

And to next year's high school student body, the Gazette promises to be back on the job, telling your story, week by week, in words and in pictures.

Closing

As we come to the end of our book, our Story of Growth, we look with optimism to a continuance of this story, a never ceasing educational and emotional growth that will result in our service to humanity. For only in giving unselfishly of ourselves to our fullest can we attain happiness and peace within, and ultimate success — for success, happiness, and peace of mind are synonymous.

In looking to the future, let us never lose sight of those in our past whose unselfishness has contributed to a foundation for our continued growth — our families, our church, our school — in short, all those whose words of advice and encouragement, whose moments of love and friendship, whose patience and concern have consoled or stimulated us.

In concluding our book we express our gratitude to those who have helped us to make this yearbook, like our class, the biggest, and we hope the finest, in East Hartford High School history.
